

Round 4 — “The Reveal”

Midnight

Scene: The vote. The confession. Big reactions. Short and theatrical — 15 minutes max. You carry the weight of this round. Everyone else just gets to react big.

After the host runs the vote tally, you stand and confess. You may deliver the speech from memory, paraphrase it, or read from your sealed envelope (SE-01). Take your time. Look at Marco.

THE CONFESSION

“Yes. I killed her.

The shirt was always the plan. Remote. Clean. I gave Irina the compound. She delivered it through the laundry. Paloma would get sick slowly — by morning it would look like a medical event. That was the professional plan.

But at 10:25, I saw her through the conference room door. Stumbling. Grabbing the wall. Still alive. The shirt should have been enough.

But I couldn’t sit in that room and wait.

I found her near the laundry. She recognized me. ‘Gloria? What are you—’

I injected the paralytic. Ninety seconds.

The shirt was the operation. The injection was me. A mother.

My son Diego was twenty-two. Paloma gave one piece of bad information to the wrong people and called it cost of doing business. She never lost a night of sleep. I’ve lost every night for two years.

She was going to testify. She was going to bring down everyone in this room — including Marco, who has done nothing except be born into the wrong family.

A mother protects her children. Even the dead ones.”

Look at Marco. “I’m sorry you had to see this.”

Note: If players failed to vote you out, Sunny will deliver the “Let me read you the room” backup speech first, calling you to stand. Then you deliver the confession above. Either way, the speech is the same.