| READ BEFORE THE PARTY

1. Your Costume

Female | Around 30 Vintage print button-down, untucked. Slim chinos or dark jeans. Canvas sneakers. Camera around neck. Wrist in a cast or brace. Messy hair.

2. Your Props

Camera (real or prop), wrist cast or brace, press pass

3. Your Character

Who You Are: Female | Around 30 | MINOR CHARACTER (Not a suspect)

Hipster photographer hired to document the conference. You consider yourself a “visual storyteller.” You’ve got a broken wrist from a surfing accident yesterday — dominant hand in a cast. It hasn’t slowed you down, but it means you couldn’t have physically committed the murder. You hold your camera in your off hand and show photos on your phone. You’re observant, nosy, and you’ve captured things people wish you hadn’t.

WHY YOU’RE NOT A SUSPECT

Broken wrist, verified by medical records. Physically incapable of administering poison or moving a body. Your cast was applied 36 hours before the murder.

WHAT YOU KNOW (REVEAL THROUGH CONVERSATION)

- You photographed Val and Paloma in a heated argument on the beach the day before. Val was crying. Paloma was pointing, standing uncomfortably close. You have the photos on your phone.
- You noticed Marco passing small packages to guests from the valet stand. “I figured mints? But who tips a valet in cash for mints?”
- You caught Sunny photographing documents sneakily during a networking session. “Weird behavior for a consultant.”

QUESTIONS YOU CAN ASK

- To Val: “Val, I got great shots of you and Paloma on the beach yesterday. You two seemed... intense. Want me to delete those?”
- To Marco: “Marco, what’s in those little packages you’ve been handing out? Just asking.”
- To Sunny: “I saw you photographing someone’s documents earlier. Writing a book?”
